A new fine dining Mediterranean restaurant has opened inside Hotel X Toronto.

Located inside Exhibition place, the luxury hotel hasn't been open long and is only just ramping up its eating and drinking options. Petros82 has 10,000 square feet of space encompassing a 160-seat dining room, lobby and raw seafood bar, private rooms, plus an outdoor patio overlooking the waterfront.

Charred Mediterranean octopus with pepper, lemon, garlic and olives.

The menu, conceived by executive chef Richard Andino — who's had stints at fine dining hot spots like the Rosewater Supper Club and North 44 — features sea and land offerings with a Greek-flair.

You can choose from traditional grilled lamb chops and sharing platters of charred octapodi (octopus), or just go for steak, with prime rib and New York strip loin among the offerings. The raw bar features oysters and caviar, and if you're really hungry, the centrepiece is a chilled bounty of seafood: Lobster, king crab legs, scallop ceviche, and more.

There is also an extensive cocktail and wine list, including Greek varietals.
